AIG Offers Corporate Flight Workers' Comp Coverage

August 24, 2004

AIG Aviation Inc., a member company of American International Group Inc. (AIG), announced that it is now offering Specialty Workers' Compensation coverage to meet the growing need of employers who place separate workers' compensation coverage for a corporate flight department.

The small- and medium-sized enterprise is a new market for AIG Aviation, which has typically written business for Fortune-class companies with premiums in excess of $100,000 annually. The customer profile for Specialty Workers' Compensation coverage includes risks in the premium range up to $100,000, and it can be purchased as a stand-alone policy or in combination with other coverages.

Available in select states, AIG Aviation Specialty Workers' Compensation coverage can be purchased through any independent insurance broker who works with AIG Aviation. To send a submission, locate an appointed broker or obtain more information on AIG Aviation, business owners and pilots can contact Kevin Shinn, Underwriter, AIG Aviation, (404) 249-1829, kevin.shinn@aig.com.
